FIRE INSURANCE NOTICES, &c. SOUTHERN PROTECTION INSURANCE COMPANY. ALEXANDRIA, VIRGINIA

FRIDAY MORNING, AUGUST 12, 1859.

CAPITAL OVER 350,000 DOLLARS,
AND CONSTANTLY INCREASING.
The Charter of this Company offers more favorable advantages to the farmer and others, than any Company chartered in the State, by insuring with or without a premium note. If the applicant prefer, he can pay the full amount of the premium in each, or by effecting a each insurance for two years, the insured saves one-eighth of the amount he would otherwise have to pay; or by becoming a member, and giving a small premium note, the in-sured saves nearly one half of the amount charged by Stock Companies, when insuring from year to year. This is the advantage resulting from the combination of the CASH AND MUTUAL PRINCIPLE.

This Company commenced issuing Policies against loss or damage by fire, on the 13th day of March, 1854, since which time over seven thousand seven hundred persons have insured and become members of the Company, and over seventy thousand dollars have been paid for losses. Having increased our business during the past year, we feel grateful for the liberal patronage bestowed upon the Company thus far, and for its flattering pros-pects of future usefulness. The Directors hope and believe, that, by prudence, caution, and a rigid system of economy, they will establish for this Company a reputation for cheapness and safety not surpassed by any Company in the U. States, All differences in settlement of losses, may be determined by three disinterested arbitrators of the County where such loss happened, to be mutually chosen by the insured and the Company. MISCELLANEOUS READING.

TOMATO CULTURE. The London Gardeners' Chronicle, of a late date, contains the following in regard to FIFTH the French mode of culture of the Tomatos. YEAR. ESTABLISHED 1854. YEAR. This being a favorite fruit with all classes of people, and esteemed as one of the whole somest connected with the culinary art, our readers, we know, will thank us for publishing the article. We hope some of our gar-

We are asked how the beautiful Tomatos, so common in the French markets and so much finer than our own, are obtained; and why it is that the sauce made from them is so incomparably better. The obvious answer would seem to be "climate;" without French climate you cannot have French Tomatos .-But that is certainly not all. Climate will influence the quality of the fruit but not its quantity; and moreover climate itself is not absolutely beyond reach. Management has Gents' Fob and Vest Chains ..... 10 00 to 30 00 doubtless in this as well as in other cases much to do with result.

Our common way of growing this plant does not seem to require alteration. Bringing it forward early, planting it in the hottest place that can be found, and keeping it from night cold and heavy rain while ripening; these points are very well understood by ex-perienced men; although it must be owned that the inexperienced are too apt to neglect them; as might have been seen last year in a pretty good country place not a hundred mites from Hastings, where they were stationed at the foot of a northwest wall and left to sprawl over the ground like wild things, with no pruning, and no autumn shelter.

The common English practice, in the best hands, is almost unobjectionable; nor indeed does it materially differ from the French except in summer management. To nail them to a wall, or to lead them over slates, is right; but to peg them down on banks, although it answers for a market gardener in very warm dry autumns, is certainly not to be recommended in private gardens where quality is more important than quantity, inasmuch as the able assortment of miscellaneous articles, varying fruit of the Tomato is compelled to absorb from $1 to $40. the bank, at the very time when it requires to be kept perfectly dry.

The best French gardeners are quite particular about stopping their plants, so that as nice a balance may be maintained between fruit and leaves as in a Peach tree. They are not satisfied with mere topping as soon as there is plenty of flowers, and with pinching off laterals afterwards. Their method is this. As soon as a cluster of flowers is visible they top the stem down to the cluster, so that the flowers terminate the stem. The effect is that sap is immediately impelled into the two buds next below the cluster, which immediately push strongly, and presently produce another cluster of flowers each. The moment these are visible, the branch to which they belong is also topped down to their level; and this is done five times successively. The effect is to form stout dwarf bushes not above eighteen inches high. In order to prevent their falling over, sticks or strings are stretched horizontally along the rows so as to keep the plants tolerably upright. In addition to book, new or old, now in print; and acknowledged | this all laterals that have no flowers, and after the fifth topping all laterals whatsoever, are In this way the ripe sap is direct ed into the fruit, which acquires a beauty, size and excellence unattainable by other means, and we are assured that 14 lbs. of ripe Tomatoes per plant is no very unusual produce; even 16 lbs. being known. Whether or not this exact method is suitable to our climate may be doubted; but the soundness of its principle is beyond dispute. Five successive toppings are more than our short summers will justify except in very hot dry places; three we should consider quite enough; for although the fourth and fifth toppings would doubtless increase the quantity of fruit, yet there is little probability of such late fruit ripening well; and it must be safest to direct the energies of the plant to bear a smaller quantity of the highest excellence that our soil and climate can secure in a species which grows best in a country where the summer heat rises to 100 deg. and does not fall below 50 deg, with a mean in the warmest month of 77 deg. DISSOLUTION OF COPARTNERSHIP. THE copartnership heretofore exising between the undersigned, in the name of HARPER & BALDWIN, was dissolved on the 7th instant by mutual consent. Either partner is authorised to use the signature of the firm in settlement of the W. A. HARPER.
